Inequality and Growth:
The Case of Germany

Dr. Michael Dauderstädt

Dr. Michael Dauderstädt studied mathematics, economics and development policy in Aachen, Paris and Berlin. He has worked for the Friedrich Ebert Foundation since 1980.

Conventional economic wisdom in his point of view posited that inequality is good for growth. More recently, in the light of the global crisis, even bastions of traditional economics such as the IMF or OECD have shifted their paradigm and say: Inequality undermines long-term growth. Germany is a typical case: While inequality increased, growth has remained sluggish.

Thursday, December 4th, 2014, 18:00 – 19:30

Abraham & Rachel Kluger Building, Room 570

The symposium will be held in English

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
